What is a divorce coach?

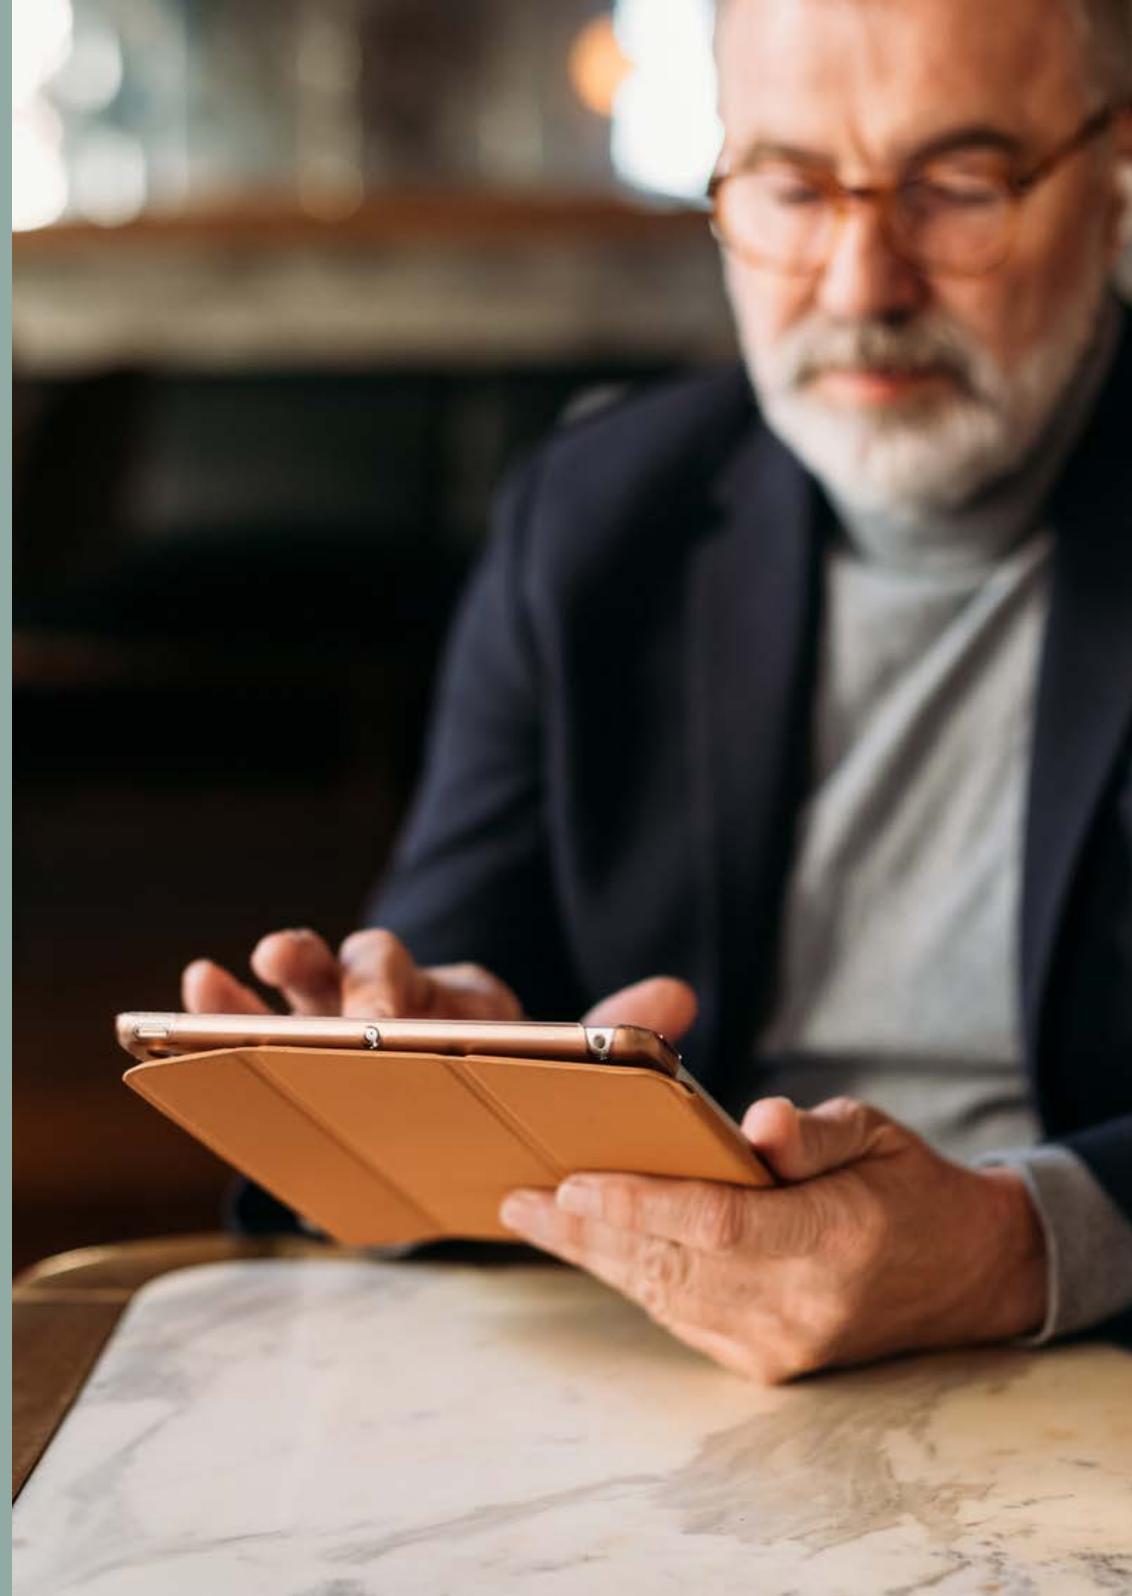

A divorce coach is a trained professional who specialises in providing guidance and support to individuals facing relationship breakdowns. They combine coaching expertise with a deep understanding of the divorce process, offering practical advice and emotional support throughout.

A coach is also there to encourage and empower clients as they navigate separation. Their expertise can be transformative, making a profound difference in the lives of those on a divorce or separation journey.

Why use a divorce coach?

A divorce coach can help you move forward in life by managing the emotional fallout of separation, leaving you with a clear mind to better understand your legal options and make informed decisions.

Working alongside your legal team, a divorce coach can focus on your emotional and practical needs, such as communication strategies, parenting plans, building a support network, and reframing the future so you can move forward positively.

What are the benefits?

A divorce coach can help you in multiple ways and will work with you to ensure sessions are tailored to your needs and goals including:

- Emotional support and empowerment
- Support with domestic abuse
- Practical guidance and education
- Legal information (not advice)
- Parenting plans
- Improved communication
- Saving you time and money
- Building a support network
- Focus on the future and post-divorce support.
